Arts and culture is important to the community

Mamta Lulla
Western Review

Town of Drayton Valley hosted an open house for the arts and culture community to get their ideas to help develop the new Recreation and Culture Master Plan.

The room was full of ideas from the individuals and organization members who attended the open house everyone from artists, dancers, associations like the River Valley Players, Drayton Valley Historical Society, Drayton Valley Multicultural Association among various others.

"It's great to see so many people here. We anticipated 30 people and approximately 40 people responded. This is wonderful and the diversity of the groups and backgrounds that you represent is absolutely amazing," said Town of Drayton Valley Director of Community Services Annette Driessen.

Mamta Lulla Western Review

David Hewko (right) has been contracted by the Town of Drayton Valley to work on the Recreation and Culture Master Plan. Pictured here is Hewko looking over at the attendees as they discuss their thoughts at a recent arts and culture open house hosted by the town.

A list of questions was passed around asking for input from the attendees. David Hewko who has been contracted by the town to work on the master plan helped the members flesh out their thoughts and ideas.

Some ideas that were talked about was communication, funding, need for volunteers, youth involvement etc.

"We fully see what we are doing is inadequate. We need to do a better job and these recommendations and ideas that come up will help us do that," said Driessen as she heard the comments around the room.

The next step will be coming up with recommendations to address some of the issues that came up.

"We will see what the common themes are and what direction we should be taking. So we will come up with those recommendations," she said in an interview.

She agreed there was a lot of work to be done by not just the town but the community as a whole.

"This is the first step of the cultural component of the master plan," she said.

She added the consultant will look at the social development plan, community sustainability plan and take those documents and surveys and consider the results along with targeting various stakeholders, organizations and individuals in the community.

Local Chamber of Commerce held a strategic planning session

Justine Kimoden
Western Review

A meeting was held on Oct. 28 at the Max Centre for the Drayton Valley Chamber of Commerce board members and other stakeholders for a strategic planning session.

The meeting was facilitated by Alberta Culture and Tourism Community Development Officer Damien Traverse.

Traverse lead the group in trying to identify the problems that the chamber is currently facing. Some of the concerns raised at the meeting includes lack of communication, loss of paid employees and key volunteer personnel, and not having a source of revenue.

A long-time member of the local chamber said there has been a decrease in interest in chamber memberships throughout the years.

"I remember we used to have our annual general meetings and there was like 200 and some people come to the meeting. It was huge," said a long-time chamber member. "And then it just kept going downhill and it ended up that there was no face for the chamber that would include everybody in the town."

The loss of memberships may come from younger business owners not seeing the value of becoming part of a chamber.

"The conversation at our table was dealing with where the chamber was at, one time it was growing, it was developing, it became stagnant and lost some key people and really struggled to gain its identity after that," said one of the attendants at the meeting, Leanard Claffey. "Also, conversation of business people today, the younger generation does not have the same ideals or maybe the the information towards what a chamber can do."

Chamber board members and representatives from various businesses in town also discussed the pros and cons of having a chamber in Drayton Valley.

According to Tracey Acorn, manager chamber services from Alberta Chambers of Commerce, having a chamber in a community can be beneficial.

"In a nutshell, your chamber ultimately, every business within a community should understand that they chamber is their voice. That the chamber is ultimately there to speak on behalf of business when there are issues municipally, provincially, federally," she said. "The other things that the chamber should do is provide education, provide networking opportunities in your communities, and celebrate business."

Everyone who was at the meeting brainstormed ideas and solutions on how to move forward. Some of the solutions thought of by the stakeholders present at the meeting includes having a good set of leaders or board of directors, having committed members, and reintroducing the chamber to the community by building a solid brand identity.

In the end, it was agreed upon to set another meeting to discuss the chamber's next steps.

County approves grant to Brazeau Gymnastics

Justine Kimoden
Western Review

Representatives of Brazeau Gymnastics came to the Brazeau County meeting on Nov. 3 to ask for tax exemption for 2015. One of the options of council is to give a refund to Brazeau Gymnastics Club for tax year 2015. A suggestion made by Brazeau County Reeve Bart Guyon to council is to give a grant to the club. Councillor Kara Westerlund agreed with Guyon and made the motion to grant the $1,656.99 to Brazeau Gymnastics Club in form of a grant. The motion was carried unanimously. In addition, Brazeau County's Director of Corporate Services Brenda Christie advised the representatives of Brazeau Gymnastics to apply for 2016 tax exemption by November 2015.

The club also asked for council for financial support to purchase gymnastics suits. The 15 suits needed by the club will cost $2,362 which will be used by the students for a competition starting in January 2016. Councillor Marc Gressler suggested to the club's representatives to "leverage money outside" and come back to county if the club has not found money to help pay for the suits. A motion to receive the club's request as information was made by Gressler and was carried unanimously.

DIRT REQUEST FOR DV SLO-PITCH ASSOCIATION

The DV Slo-Pitch Association asks council to approve the donation of trucking and loading screened dirt up to approximately 16 loads to enhance the field conditions for softball users. COUNTY TO PARTICIPATE IN SANTA'S PARADE

Council discussed what kind of giveaways they are willing to spend money on for Santa's Parade that will be held on Nov. 20 at 7 p.m.. Councillor Kara Westerlund suggested candy canes and tattoos with Brazeau County logo in them. Other giveaway ideas suggested at the meeting were LED sticks and LED yo-yos. It was discussed that $1,500 will be enough to order approximately 1,000 LED sticks. Councillor Shirley Mahan made a motion to spend up to an additional $3,000 for children's giveaways for Santa's Parade. Mahan's motion was carried.

PEMBINA PHYSICIAN RECRUITMENT AND RETENTION COMMITTEE REQUEST FOR FUNDING

Council received a letter from Pembina Physician Recruitment and Retention Committee president Keith Warren asking for "$13,250 to cover the proposed budget for 2015-2016." Best wishes for Prime Minister Trudeau

As of Nov. 4, Justin Trudeau is officially Canada's prime minister. We wish him well.

Sure, we endorsed another candidate. Sure, a majority of Canadians did not vote for the Liberals. We know this. We will be standing up for those Canadians in the days and weeks and months to come. We will be holding our government to account.

But we also respect our democracy and the office of prime minister. Nov. 4 was Trudeau's day. He won a majority government.

Trudeau has selected a cabinet of Canadians with diverse resumes and backgrounds. The swearing-in ceremony made it clear they are entrusted with a great responsibility. We wish them the best in meeting these challenges.

People in other countries dream about having a political system like ours – with the people having their say in elections and with peaceful transitions of power.

The swearing-in ceremony is a sacred affair for anyone who believes in the supremacy of democracy. It's a symbol of the strength of our country and the virtues of our system of government.

We also want a strong and vibrant Canada regardless of who is prime minister. Trudeau campaigned on improving the lot of the middle class. It's an honourable goal and one that we support. The voters elected him with a majority mandate largely based on his words about middle-class prosperity.

We wish him well in accomplishing this goal. Hard-working Canadians from coast to coast are owed a high standard of living. Canada's 338 parliamentarians are tasked with working together as a team to accomplish this.

Keep Canada prosperous. Lessen the tax burden on hard-working Canadians while also ratifying trade deals such as the Trans Pacific Partnership so that we can grow the economy as a whole. The more there is in general, the more there is to go around.

Keep Canada safe. Help support local governments in keeping our communities safe, but also keep a sharp eye on the rising challenges around the world that could threaten our security and stability.

The Liberals' four-year mandate begins now.

We wish Prime Minister Justin Trudeau the best in serving all Canadians well.

Bobbleheads to beat the blues

Mamta's Musings
Mamta Lulla

I have worked at the Western Review for about a year and a half and never have I been late to a meeting or an interview because I slept in.

But that's what happened recently. I had a meeting and I couldn't make it and I had to bother my colleague from my desk.

The conversation from my end was rusty and embarrassing. From my in-bed voice I asked her to attend the meeting because my alarm didn't go off. It probably did, now that I think about it. But I may have hit the snooze button a few times.

Of course, I was apologetic because I cover local politics for the paper so when it's time for someone else to do it, I can understand it must be difficult. I know because I was once in the same boat. I would go to these meetings on and off because I was covering for someone and I would sit there trying not to look lost. You see when you don't have a background of what they are talking about everything swooshes past your head.

Anyway, the point is, this has never happened before. Of course I have been late to work like any other normal human being who runs late to work sometimes but I have never let that happen for a meeting. But now my streak is broken.

"It upsets me a little. I consider myself a professional and this shouldn't happen but it did, I think I would like to blame the cold weather for this. You wake up one morning and there is snow. It's been day two of some white stuff on my car, Lana, and it's already inconveniencing me.

The cold means I am trying to stay warm. I know this is not cold yet, but if you have been reading my column since the last winter you know winter is not my thing.

As the seasons change I don't enjoy a lot of the same routine. For example, I like to cook and I am a decent cook if I am in the mood. These days though, I can sit there hungry, but I will not get out of my comforter and dig in that cold fridge and find dinner.

One needs to warm up. So, I tried dancing. That tired old line on the back of battered old books found in backpacker friendly cafes, which says 'dance like nobody is watching' helps.

I was at this very casual house party recently and I was skeptical at first but I went anyway and I am glad I did because once the music turned on I refused to be in my seat.

I am also guilty for being an "I-got-two-left-feet" kind of a dancer, but that night I danced like I really didn't have an ounce of care in the world.

I have started to translate this in my car as well. I don't care if the world is watching as all the drivers in the cars around me shake their heads. Even if it isn't my favourite song, I turn into a bobble head and sing loudly. It makes me feel better. My day takes a new turn.

So, next time the cold is getting to you or you are just having a bad day, why don't you try to be a bobble head for about three minutes or until the end of the song and see if you feel better.

Letter to the editor

Brazeau County's solar project

Brazeau County is in the process of considering funding solar systems on private properties for any or all homes and most businesses located in the county.

On Oct. 19 2015 Brazeau County held a public meeting with ENMAX Corporation and presented sample costs for six submitted properties to meet the needs of six county citizens.

The cheapest sample shown suggested the county would pay 57 per cent which would be $7,140 of the cost of that system. The highest sample shown suggested the county would pay 73 per cent which would be $39,984 of the cost of that system. The average cost per site suggested to be paid by the county for the six samples is just shy of $19,000.

On Oct. 19 the discussion proposed approximately 3,000 potential hookups. Therefore the costs to the county could range from $21 million ($7,000 per hookup for 3,000 hookups) to $57 million ($19,000 per hookup for 3,000 hookups).

If we are looking at getting grants to fund this project we need to have the grants approved before the project starts or grants are almost always ineligible for the project.

The county already has planned/committed costs both operational and long-term. The county still needs to meet our operational costs as well as continuing with our 10-year-capital plan projects such as the completion of our Internet/cell phone tower network, our scheduled road overlays, as well as our new road construction and paving.

These total dollars for the solar systems are being considered without having being budgeted. Such practice would be frowned upon by Alberta Municipal Affairs. Councils are supposed to have budgeted costs for such significant expenditures beforehand.

Are you in favour of county tax dollars being spent on private properties to the extent of the above quoted millions of dollars?

Please let me know your opinion. Phone me at 780-696-2468 or e-mail at heinrichfarms@gmail.com and also call your local councillor.

Thank you
Anthony Heinrich
Brazeau County resident

Chasing a financial rainbow

The attempt to reach an unattainable goal is often referred to as "chasing rainbows." It appears that balancing Alberta's budget is becoming an unattainable goal.

The Alberta government campaigned on the promise that they would balance the province's budget by 2017-18. After the election in May it was disclosed that due to a mathematical error the projected goal would be put back until 2018-19. With the disclosure of this government's first budget mere days away it was revealed by Alberta's Finance Minister that the day-to-day operating budget in fact won't be balanced until 2019-20[1].

The problem with chasing this visual illusion we know as a rainbow is that it only exists when airborne water droplets are present in the air along with sunlight hitting it at the right angle. When you move towards a rainbow its position never seems to get closer, much like what is currently happening with Alberta's finances. It appears that even though we are moving towards the projected date for balancing our budget, we never seem to arrive at the base of the rainbow.

The Alberta Legislature's fall sitting is set to commence on Monday October 26th that will see the budget following the next day. The indication is that Alberta will be presented with its 7th deficit budget in the last 8 years, projected to be in the neighbourhood of $5.9 billion.

A long held theory in Alberta is that energy prices directly create deficit budgets. Well we've come to find out that this is simply not the case[2]. After four consecutive large deficits in the early 90s, the Alberta government brought in fiscal reforms. They were able to run surpluses for 14 consecutive years, starting in 1994-95. These surpluses were achieved despite oil prices that were below $60 until 2004[2]. In 2007 the spending began to outpace revenues despite record oil prices.

And so begins the chase for the elusive rainbow that promises to magically balance the budget and allow no limits on spending. The reality of the financial rainbow is exactly the same as the rainbow that follows a summer rain. The closer you get to where it appears to be, the more you realize it just doesn't get any closer. It appears the Alberta government is counting on a rise in energy prices to eliminate the deficit. Unfortunately the historical data suggests that chasing that financial rainbow is going to result in perpetual deficits without some form of restraint being shown with government's expenditures.

In a span of less than six months the rainbow has moved further away by two full years, going from a goal of a balanced budget in 2017-18 to 2019-20. The fiscal reforms enacted in 1994 consisted of more than water droplets in the air that appeared as rainbows. They were concrete and substantial fiscal restraints that held spending in check and followed a formula that took into account actual revenues.

If the Alberta government continues to chase rainbows they'll find out that the goal they're reaching for is simply unattainable.

The above article was co-compiled by a small group of Official Opposition MLAs who each week, get together to talk through a legislative policy issue. As part of the process, a short commentary is compiled and then edited.

CETC is getting ready to open in January

Mamta Lalla
Western Review

The Town of Drayton Valley's soon-to-be-opened Clean Energy and Technology Centre (CETC) aims to create a more sustainable economy for the region.

"The centre is expected to open in early 2016 so we want more people to be aware of what services will be offered," said Town of Drayton Valley bio mile co-ordinator Kristina Vallee.

The facility will be a centre for post-secondary education and training along with local research. It will also provide space for events, lectures and workshops.

The exterior of the building has been completed and currently the town is working on painting and dry-walling the insides. The town wants to tell people about what the centre can do for them.

"The CETC is a cornerstone of Drayton Valley and will develop a sustainable diverse economy through education and development of skilled labour and innovation of new clean technologies with applied and theoretical research," said Town of Drayton Valley communications and marketing co-ordinator Tyler Russell.

The plan includes taking resources such as unexplored technology, raw materials, and government grants and creating jobs while growing the local economy and retaining labour.

"A key initiative for the CETC is to provide education and training in partnership with NorQuest College to prepare workers for a clean energy and technology based industry of the future," explained Russell from his presentation.

He added that the CETC, which will be will be located in the south end of Drayton Valley, will help the people in the community by creating a sustainable economy and avoiding the boom/bust cycle that currently exists in the area.

The Town and Parkland County signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) recently to collaborate and work together in the interest of the project.

"They really like the idea of spreading some of the CETC services into their region. So it's a partnership working back and forth and it's a collaboration of services," said Vallee.

The MOU was signed at a town council meeting recently and Parkland County Mayor Rod Shalgec and councillors also toured the facility.

The centre was previously set to open in fall 2015 but the new date is January 2016. When asked about the delay both Russell and Vallee said the previous date was "tentative."

Once open, NorQuest College along with Drayton Valley and District Community Learning Association will operate from the CETC facility. Town of Drayton Valley CAO Manny Deol will head the operations at the CETC as the chief operating officer.

Along with Deol, Vallee will also be moving to the new facility. Plans for hiring more people are not yet known.

"We are probably hiring janitorial staff. 2016 is the start up year of operations for the centre so it's not really defined yet as to whom we are hiring. We have to go through the budget process as well," said Vallee.

Pembina Crisis Connection Society to host speaker series

Justine Kimoden
Western Review

In celebration of Pembina Crisis Connection Society's (PCCS) 25th Anniversary Speaker Series, a day full of free speaker series will be held on Nov. 20 from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Legion Hall.

The four speaker series will tackle topics including elder abuse, child abuse, bullying, and grief after suicide.

"Seniors Association of Greater Edmonton (SAGE) will be speaking on the unique aspects of elder abuse, including medical and financial abuse, signs of abuse, how to protect yourself and loved ones, and also where to find support for those in an abusive situation. Little Warriors will educate the public on the signs of abuse and the extreme negative consequences of childhood sexual abuse as well as introducing the in depth preventative training offered by Little Warriors through their Prevent It! Program. The audience will also learn about the Be Brave Ranch, a one-of-a-kind family oriented treatment facility built by Little Warriors for survivors of childhood sexual abuse aged eight to 12," said Catie Hickman, coordinator for PCCS. "Bev Dekker's See It, Address It, Change It presentation will introduce you to the types of bullying, provide strategies to help prevent and respond to bullying behaviour and highlight changes in the new Education Act related to creating safe, caring, and inclusive school environments. The Support Network presentation will work to dispel the myths, misconceptions, and taboos around suicide. They will also talk about why families, friends, and communities suffer a unique type of grief after losing someone to suicide and the resources available for dealing with this distinct grieving process."

Hickman said the society's main goal in hosting this speaker series is to prevent abuse in the community.

"Prevention is not glamourous but is a crucial part of a healthy and vibrant community. We want to build a capacity in individuals and the community as a whole to understand and prevent violence," she said. "This means educating policy makers, community leaders, business owners, and service providers about specific violence issues so they can shape positive changes. We understand that not every community member can be 100 per cent informed and prepared to deal with every issue. So it is also important to make community members aware of the vast array of local and regional resources that can provide information, training, and support in a time of need. Hence, the trade show area is open all day and supplied with material on a wide range of violence prevention topics and full of representatives from local and regional service providers."

Anyone interested in attending the speaker series can drop in on the day of the event.

"Everyone is welcome whether for 10 minutes or the whole day but keep in mind the subject matter may not be appropriate for young children," said Hickman. "This event provides a space for people to educate themselves, connect with services, and engage with other community members on issues that affect all of us."

Let's discuss economic development

Mamta Lulla
Western Review

About half a dozen people showed up at the economic development open house organized by the Town of Drayton Valley on Nov. 3.

Economic development officer for the Town of Drayton Valley Eric Burton said he wants to start conversations in the community around the subject.

"Council has made economic development a priority. One of the first pieces required in order to move forward, is input from the business community and from the public," said Burton.

Town has had consultants who have completed a business survey and based on the findings put together recommendations and the community has an opportunity to provide input on those recommendations.

"Recommendations will be made based on feedback from the business community. ... will work with key economic stakeholders in the community and further refine those recommendations to develop a community economic development strategy," said Burton.

For those who missed the open house, there is a workshop with a tentative date of Nov. 24 to talk about the strategy and move forward.

The workshop will allow economic stakeholders to share some background and stories and key concepts of economic development.

"We can share stories and information that will provide people with a better understanding of economic development. Based on a shared understanding we will be able to create a vision for the community," he explained.

He added participation from the community is imperative to move forward.

"Participation is important because strategy is only successful if people know what it is and believe in it. All too often we see reports written just to be put on a shelf, not achieving the goals that they were intended to achieve," he said.

His hope is to get people excited about the shared vision and strategy and have fun while working towards the long term goals.

"A great community strategy is based on the vision of community members themselves, but also must strike a chord with community members, encouraging them to say, 'I know what I can do to be a part of this strategy.' That is when it comes alive. People see it, get excited about it, and they begin working towards achieving real outcomes that impact the quality of life in the community," he said.

WHAT IS TYPE 2 DIABETES?

Kathryn Gillett, RN.
Chronic Disease Nurse

Canadian Diabetes Association (2015) defines Type 2 diabetes as a disease in which your pancreas does not produce enough insulin, or your body does not properly use the insulin it makes. As a result, glucose (sugar) builds up in your blood instead of being used for energy.

The Good News:
You can live a long and healthy life by keeping your blood glucose (sugar) levels at the target range set by you and your health-care team. You can do this by:

- Eating healthy meals and snacks
- Enjoying regular physical activity
- Monitoring your blood glucose (sugar) using a home blood glucose meter*
- Aiming for a healthy body weight
- Taking diabetes medications including insulin and other medications, if prescribed by your doctor
- Managing stress effectively

Adding more physical activity to your day is one of the most important things you can do to help manage your diabetes and improve your health. It is recommended getting 150 minutes of aerobic activity and three sessions of resistance activity each week.

The Primary Care Network (PCN) is excited to announce that November is Diabetes Awareness Month. November 25th we will be hosting a Diabetes Walk and Talk at 1:30 pm. We will start off with a short walk (weather permitting) then we invite everyone back to the PCN for a healthy snack, meet the staff and get more information about Diabetes. Door prizes to be won! We invite anyone of all ages to join us.

DOES IT MATTER WHERE MY FLOORING CAME FROM?

Marieena S
Owner

When purchasing flooring it is often very important for individuals to know where there flooring came from, how it is made. Many products can be made in Canada, the US, Europe, Korea or China/Japanese. Sometime, a product can be labelled as "Made in Canada," and it may not be so. This can happen when a manufacturer buys a product and has it packaged in Canada. The box can be labelled "Made in Canada," but may not be the case. This type of packaging has to be 12-14% made in Canada. Unfortunately, consumers are often mislead, and think otherwise. Sometimes, depending on where the product is made, can depend on the quality. Some foreign countries do not make as good of a project as others. Therefore check reputation of the company/manufacturer. Often box stores will carry the cheaper brands of some products made in foreign companies. These may or may not be as durable and worthy to have in your home. Compare apples and apples. If it's a dime a dozen, there's usually a reason. Economical products made at some of these mills, often have less of a finish or wear layer. With that being said, flooring can look dull or patchy after a short time. This can be from types of cleaners used on flooring, or amount of traffic in the homelvers. Depending on warranty, you may not have anything to go on just by the type of product. Some of these floors are just disposable floors, and that is all they will ever be. Hoping to get the length of time on the warranty as advertised or stated may be two different things. Therefore always check with a independent dealer that specializes in flooring to get the best help in choosing a floor.

SHOULD I GET MY ANNUAL FLU VACCINATION?

Jennifer Winter
Pharmacist

In most cases, the answer to this question is yes. Considering that 10-20% of Canadians will be affected by the influenza virus, it's usually a good idea. Canada's National Advisory on Immunization recommends that all Canadians over 6 months of age get a flu shot. By getting your flu shot, you are less likely to be one of the 20,000 hospitalizations or one of the 8000 deaths caused by the flu each year in Canada. About 70-90% of healthy people that get the flu shot will be protected from the virus. Those that still get sick with the flu usually have much milder symptoms. The vaccination is very well tolerated, most often only causing a bit of soreness at the injection site. Contrary to what some say, it is impossible for the flu shot to cause the flu as it does not contain live virus. It's good to get your vaccination before the seasonal flu starts making its rounds to give your immune system time to build up immunity. It is a free vaccination, so why not get yours today? Talk to your doctor, pharmacist, or public health nurse for more information.

THE CHANCE IS OVER, NOW WHAT?

Barry A. Shellian RPFT
Wildfire Ranger / Information Officer

October 31st marks the end of the 2015 wildfire season. Although the current wildfire hazard is LOW we are heading into the winter under very dry conditions. The dry conditions are favorable for holdover fires.
A holdover fire is a fire that has been left smoldering, continues to burn deep under ground all winter long and re-emerges as a wildfire in the spring. Prevent spring wildfires by making sure your fall and winter fires are extinguished!

Winter Burning Tips

Burn when there is snow cover and the ground is frozen.
Avoid building piles in muskeg areas.
Set only the fires that can be controlled at all times by available manpower and equipment.
Ensure that piles are at least 25 meters from trees and structures.
Check on burning frequently.

A wildfire at this time of year is 100 per cent preventable. Most if not all of the wildfires we see at this time of year are human-caused. Human-caused wildfires are 100 per cent preventable. Please do your part to prevent wildfires!

IS POST EXERCISE SORENESS A SIGN THAT I WORKED OUT HARD ENOUGH?

Linda MacKinnon CPFT
Exercise & Nutrition Coach

Delayed onset muscle soreness (often referred to as (DOMS) is brought about by damage to muscle tissue. It is primarily caused by eccentric exercise, where muscles are lengthened under extreme tension. During eccentric activity the working muscles exert a "braking" action in order to resist the forces of gravity. This produces small micro tears in parts of the makeup of the associated muscle fibers. These micro tears undergo some chemical changes causing further injury to the fibers and creating what we call metabolic waste to be produced, which in turn results in localized pain and stiffness. White blood cells then migrate to the site of the injury, further exacerbating the sensation of pain. Depending on the extent of muscle damage, soreness can persist for 48 hours or more.

Although we refer to muscle building as the breaking down and repairing of muscle tissue it is important not over stress the muscle beyond efficient repair. Many people gauge the quality of a workout by how sore they feel later that day or the next day. Does this mean you did a good workout that will yield the best results? Not necessarily. But it is an indication that you have initiated the beginning stages for muscle growth. So - No - muscle soreness is not a pre-requisite for muscle development. The muscular system of the body is highly adaptive- therefore it becomes increasingly efficient in muscle repair including dealing with pain. So in a nut shell - the harder you train, the more you build up your resistance to muscle soreness. We can relate to this in many other types of training as well. Ever wonder why the person next to you at any given event is not sore the next day but you can hardly walk? They did their adaptive training! So don't give up on those workouts that almost feel too easy. Too many hard workouts might impair the ability of your muscles to repair sufficiently and therefore affect your overall ability to train to your potential. And of course when in doubt- seek the assistance of a qualified fitness professional!

DV Wildcats is back for the 2015–2016 NCHL season

Justine Kimoden
Western Review

The Drayton Valley Wildcats Hockey team is back on ice for the 2015-2016 North Central Hockey League.The team currently has one win and two losses.

Lanny Patten, Drayton Valley Wildcats president, said the team took a break from the league last year but is now back thanks to volunteers.

"Last year, we did not have a team. We went on a leave because we did not have any players to play so this is the first year that we have played in two years," he said. "Thanks to all of the volunteers and staff that has allowed us to help us put this together again."

Having a consistent coaching staff and younger players could bring the Wildcats to provincial championship, according to Patten.

"We are hoping to compete for provincial championship. We have got a consistent coaching staff this year. It is consists of Larry Modurg and Derek McConnel so we are running consistent practices because of it," he said. "We also have a lot of new young faces. We have younger guys who are in the 25-year range which is abnormal for us. Normally, our range has been upwards towards the 30year mark so we are looking newer and younger which is good."

Patten encourages the Drayton Valley community to support the Drayton Valley Wildcats by coming out to games or by giving monetary donations to bring the provincials to town.

"We need some local support. We have people that show up to the games plus it would be helpful to have financial support," he said. "(We are) all local players that have played hockey or grew up playing minor hockey and they all work in the community."

Anyone interested in making financial support to the Drayton Valley Wildcats, contact Lanny Patten at (780)898-7896.

Many attended Guitars and Denim

[redacted]
Local Reporter

The annual Guitars and Denim event took place last weekend where many farm families in the area were recognized

A special volunteer recognition was added this year.

"We have added it because we are looking at people who have volunteered year after year for things like rodeo," said Colleen Schoeninger, Secretary of Drayton Valley Agricultural Society and raffle coordinator for the event

By adding the volunteer recognition this year the Drayton Valley and District Agricultural Society was hoping to recognize volunteerism in the farm community

"There are some really dedicated volunteers that are supporters of agricultural events and we wanted to show some appreciation for their contribution and commitment," she said

There may be more recognitions in the future like the businesses that support the farm industry in the area

Other recognitions also took place at the event such as the pioneer family of the year.

The Ag Society also provides two $500 post-secondary bursaries to students in the rural area.

Schoeninger explained students' leadership and volunteerism are variables considered when deciding who gets the bursaries. She added if they receive too many applicants then the society looks at their agricultural involvement and education.

"It doesn't matter what they are studying unless we get competition. Financial support is one of the factors. Acceptance into post secondary institution, they have to show leadership or volunteerism in the community," she said

There was also a quad raffle at the event, money raised from which went into community events.

Community will gather at the Legion hall once again

Western Review

The Remembrance Day ceremony at the Royal Canadian Legion Branch No 269 will continue this year.

The ceremony honours all veterans at the cenotaph located across from the Legion hall in Drayton Valley.

Legion has been organizing these ceremonies for the past 58 years.

Western Review was told last week that there would be guest speakers and representatives from the federal and provincial government along with local leaders at the ceremony.

"We have a parade on the street and we have members of one service battalion from Edmonton, approximately 42 members here at the ceremony. Following the ceremony, we have a program inside [the legion] as well," said president of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch No 269 Bill Cavanagh.

The ceremony outside included a static parade like every year paying respect to veterans.

Local veteran Frank Newberry lays a wreath as a representative for his fellow veterans at Remembrance Day ceremony last year at the Legion hall.

Members from Drayton Valley Royal Canadian Air Cadets Squadron 733 will also be present at the ceremony.

"The cadets are our colour party and our honour guard on Remembrance Day at the cenotaph. They march on the colours and they provide honour guard at the front in the hall and at the cenotaph," said Cavanagh.

A decision on who would be speaking at the ceremony had not been conferred as of last week Cavanagh said every year the ceremony welcomes guest speakers who are veterans or ex-military or serving military and from various levels of government.

The ceremony provides members of the community an opportunity to meet and greet with people in service and share some stories.

"You get to meet the military, veterans, RCMP, fire department and other emergency services. So the community can come out and meet our cadets and serving people," said Cavanagh last week.

Please pause to reflect on the sacrifices of those who went before...

Grants for community events

Western Review

Drayton Valley administration and councillors discussed support grants policy for the community at the government and priorities committee meeting on Nov. 4.

The town was looking at having various funding requests in three different categories supporting community events, sports and youth arts and culture.

Town of Drayton Valley Director of Community Services Annette Driessen identified one change in the policy is having a condition in the policy that will ask recipients to have post-event report or presentation for the town.

Councillors discussed some changes and had recommendations for administration. The policy will come back to another government and priorities committee meeting before it goes to council meeting for approval.

BRAZEAU GYMNASTICS FUNDING REQUEST

A letter from Brazeau Gymnastics came forward asking for financial assistance from the Town of Drayton Valley.

Driessen identified the request is not part of the community events grant and noted there wasn't any money to give away as part of that grant.

"It's a request on its own," she said.

Coun. Graham Long said although he would like to help the club but he sees the request as a "slippery slope" meaning other organizations can come forward with similar requests as well.

The request would come forward in town council meeting where the final decision would be made.

We Scare Hunger campaign held by local school to help food bank

HW Pickup Junior High School students held We Scare Hunger campaign from Oct. 7 to Oct. 30 for the benefit of local food bank.

"We Scare Hunger is a Halloween food drive to help food banks stock up on everything they need to fight hunger, the worst super villain ever," said HW Pickup Junior High School leadership advisor Shannon Gallant in an e-mail interview. "(We had) trick or treat for non-perishable goods or used Halloween to kick off a longer school-wide food drive."

All grade levels at HW Pickup Junior High School participated in the campaign.

"We did it as a class challenge. There was a point value associated to different items. For example, we knew the Food Bank desperately needed some items like cereal, peanut butter, and grocery gift cards so we placed those with the highest value," Gallant said. "Leadership students went to collect the food every two days and recorded the classes point values before putting the food on display in the foyer. The points were posted for each class so competition was high to beat another class. The class with the most points won a pizza feed, free popcorn tickets, 30 spirit points, and overall grade with the most points got foyer for a week."

This is the fourth year We Scare Hunger campaign was held at the school. Last year's campaign, the school raised $500 in gift cards and over 1,000 food items.

"We understand that it is important to assist locally in our community. This is a program from Free the Children that our school and school division are huge supporters of. Some campaigns we run support provincially and globally, however, this one we encourage because of the local support needed for our Drayton Valley food bank," Gallant said. "This year our totals are $20 in student donation, $150 Shaq Award donation, $1,770 in gift cards, and food items."

According to Gallant, it is important for students to participate in We Scare Hunger to learn the importance of supporting the local community.

"Now, more than ever, more and more people and families are using the food bank. It is important for our students to see how valuable it is to support your own community," she said. "We take students with us to drop off the donations because it is then that they realize the severity of their situation. They see first hand the bare shelves and the smile on the volunteers faces as each student is making multiple trips to bring donation after donation. You cannot teach that in a classroom."

Donations were dropped off by students at the local food bank on Nov. 4.

HW Pickup students dropped off their collected food items at the local food bank. The food items were collected from their We Scare Hunger Campaign.

STAR Catholic is in the process of revising its mission and vision statements

Western Review

A revised mission and vision statement for the St. Thomas Aquinas Roman (STAR) Catholic division is on the works as the whole STAR Catholic community comes together to provide their input.

STAR Catholic board chair John Tomkinson said it is important to revisit the mission and vision statements and make changes to it as necessary.

"It is generally recognized to do this periodically because it is a healthy activity for any organization," he said. "The mission statement is the critical statement that we use to frame all the activities and decisions that we make as an institution. It is also the statement that is best used to communicate to the public and to our stakeholders who we are and what we are about. The board has actually spent some time over the last few years having the discussion around the appropriate time and efforts required to review some of this foundational statements."

With the growing community of the STAR Catholic division, Tomkinson said it is time to review the division's mission and vision statements.

"We have new schools, we have a growing division and we are really looking forward to having the opportunity to engage all of the different communities and stakeholders to have the conversation of who we are and what we do and to redefine those statements," he said.

Everyone in the community was welcomed to provide their input including parents, staff, and students.

"We are only halfway through the process and in the initial steps, we encouraged everyone to put in their feedback on suggestions and thoughts and concerns. In fact, one of the first steps that we did was an online survey and a questionnaire that went out to our parish communities, parents, staff, students and anybody interested in being part of the conversation that was available to the public," he said. "We are pleased to say we have over 1,100 responses to that survey."

After data from the survey were collected, the survey results were presented to the mission and vision sub-committee as tasked by STAR Catholic board trustee Susan Kathol on Oct. 27 in Wetaskiwin, Alta.

"The sub committee did a review of all of the feedback that came from the surveys and we were able to take that and have a better more focused discussion with members of the public and members of the different stakeholder groups in person session in Wetaskiwin and we had a tremendous turnout," Tomkinson said. "The results from that point is a more focused idea of where we are going to go. There are still a few more steps to go so the information that came out from the public consultation which was time for an opportunity to reflect on what some of the themes that came out of the surveys were and then in person to have people discuss those and to mark out pros and cons and to list what is the priority or what are the really important pieces to make sure that are well articulated and are well thought out in the mission statement."

A revised STAR Catholic mission and vision statement is expected to be available before the end of the 2015-2016 school year.

Protecting What's Valuable

Rural Electrification Associations (REAs) are unique in Canada to Alberta, providing electricity to farms and rural residential member owners. In the late 1940s, early 1950s, farmers organized REA cooperatives to bring electricity to the rural areas when Investor Owned Utilities (IOUs) refused because it was too costly. Today, REA assets have gained value, REAs are viable competitors, and now IOUs see the value of an REA. Let's consider that value and its importance to the rural economy of Alberta.

What makes your REA valuable?
- You own the assets of a multi-million dollar cooperative
- You have democratic member control of your REA.
- You benefit from economic participation
- REAs are a benchmark for electricity costs for all Albertans
- You contribute to rural economic sustainability

How can I get involved with my REA?
- Call your REA — the number will be on your monthly bill
- Find the contact information for the Director who represents you
- Talk to your Director about why the REA is a viable and valuable cooperative
- Attend your REA meetings and take time to learn more about the organization
- Volunteer your expertise and skills to support your REA
- Tell your friends, family, and neighbours why you think the REA is valuable and worth protecting
- Call your MLA and tell them why the REA is valuable to Alberta

Sponsored by the Alberta Federation of REAs

Representation ~ Education ~ Advocacy

If you have a passion for your community and are interested in finding out more, talk to your REA. Have you got time to spare? Ask your Board of Directors how you can be part of the REA future. Cooperative sustainability depends on continued support by passionate members who recognize the value of the REA and see the continued contribution the REA makes to the rural community where they live. Your support helps perpetuate the REA's growth and value. You can help direct the future of the REA. Talk to your REA Board – work together really does work!

Why garden organically?

Much has been written about organic gardening over the years. In 1947, R.I. Rodale started the Rodale Institute in Pennsylvania. His commitment to the concept of all things organic was strong and his persuasiveness so great that Mr. Rodale and later his son Bob, did more to popularize the concept of organic growing than anyone before or since. Together they created Organic Gardening magazine, which at one time had the highest paid circulation of all garden magazines in the world.

I have been a keen study of Rodale's work ever since we had our first baby 41 years ago. I recall looking at our little bundle of joy and thinking that the arsenal of chemicals in my garden shed stood in stark contrast to the responsibility that I felt for this helpless creature. We welcomed the baby into the house and I gave all of my weed and bug killers to my Dad, who was happy to oblige.

There is never a bad time to think through our habits and why we have them. Now is as good a time as any to consider 'going organic'.

1. Better food. We think of organic gardening for the most part as it relates to edible garden plants and fruit. When you grow a tomato plant in your garden or condo balcony you have an opportunity to control what is used to protect it from insects and disease and the source of nutrients that it receives: synthetic or natural? Fact is, you CAN grow great food organically in the absence of chemicals, so why wouldn't you? The food that we purchase from the local retailer does not come with assurances that it is chemical free, unless of course you pay the extra for certified organic food.

2. Long term health. An organically grown plant learns to stand on its' own two feet - so to speak. Put another way, a plant that is reliant on synthetics to sustain it is, well, reliant on outside sources to grow, flower and fruit. We condition the plants in our garden by our habits. If you apply chemical/synthetic fertilizers to the soil in your effort to grow them, your plants will not perform as well in the absence of said products. Conversely, when you use compost and natural products to nurture your garden plants their growth is sustained for longer periods of time and they are generally healthier than the non-organic alternatives.

3. Plants feed themselves. Leaves and garden 'debris' are valuable sources of natural nutrients and fibre to all of your garden plants. The leaves that we habitually rake, bag and haul to the end of the driveway this time of year for pick up contain pure carbon (GOOD carbon) that, when broken down by natural processes in the soil, actually benefit all living plants. Think about that and begin to question why we put leaves out to the curb at all. It is a silly waste of money and resources. I say, "Save that money and put it into municipal tree planting".

4. Fewer weeds. Take your lawn for example. when 2,4D was available we became used to the idea that a weed would die within a week of application. So what? In the absence of the weed, another weed made its way into your lawn creating the need to re-apply the 2,4D. It was an endless cycle and we were addicted to it. Now it is common practice to leave nitrogen rich grass clippings on the lawn to rot down into the root zone and benefit grass plants. We cut our lawn higher than we did a generation ago: 6 to 8 cm. We thicken the lawn with quality fertilizers (there are many natural ones on the market, the most popular being corn gluten) and we spread triple mix and quality lawn seed over the thin spots to compete weeds out of existence. We have become more patient; it takes up to two years to experience a 'weed free' lawn using the popular methods mentioned here, but it is a much more sustainable approach than chemical weed killing.

5. Death = Life. The never ending cycle of growing, flowering and fruiting attracts native pollinators like bees and hummingbirds and in the end a dead plant. The foundation of all great soil is decaying and rotting plant material. Without it we have clay and sand - two elements of good soil but too much of either produces a very poor garden. Nature is the ultimate recycler. She created the original 'ashes to ashes' concept and it has worked for her since the beginning of time. Why would we not want to get in on it?

Take a Look Back - Drayton Valley

Downtown Drayton Valley in spring, 1955. The hotel had opened in February and was frantically busy. Main Street remains undeveloped except for one business, Molnar's Plumbing in the foreground of the picture. One of the many trailer parks and a few new houses can be seen to the right of the hotel while beyond is the farm and barn of John Mackenzie who played a prominent part in early development of the town.

The photograph was taken from the top of a radio tower by Dale "Moose" Cartwright using a camera supplied by Peter Jacobs. (Drayton Valley and District Historical Society Archive)

Donations at Aurora: November is our annual fundraising drive. We do not sell ANYTHING! Parents did not like the idea of their children selling door to door. We simply request that parents, families and/or business owners consider donating money to the school. All donations $10.00 and over will receive a tax receipt. Cheques are to be made payable to Wild Rose School Division (all donations will be forwarded to Aurora).

After School PE Program for Grades 3&4 and Grades 5&6: The After School PE Program will begin for the Grades 5&6 classes on Monday, November 16th (always a Monday) and on Thursday, November 19th (always a Thursday) for the Grades 3&4 classes. The After School PE Program runs from 3:20 to 4:20 on both days. Parents, please be advised that all students participating in this program MUST be picked up by 4:20. A notice (with permission form) already went home indicating the dates. As well, please be reminded that siblings will need to have separate home-time arrangements as there is no supervision for them.

Operation Christmas Child Shoe boxes: This is one way you can make a difference in a young person's life. Your small gift - the shoebox - will touch an underprivileged child's life. We have shoeboxes and brochures in the office for you to pick up! The shoe boxes are due (at the latest) on Thursday, November 19th. Please remember to include the $7.00 shipping fee in each shoe box!

The WRSD Mandatory School Fee: The $40.00/student fee is now due. If you have not yet paid this, please come in to the office as soon as possible. Cheques are payable to Aurora Elementary School. If you have any questions regarding this, please call us at 780-542-9355 or Wild Rose School Division #66 office at 1-800-771-0557.

Boys and Girls Club: The Boys and Girls Club still have a limited number of Out of School Care spots available for children from 5 to 12 years of age. The fun, supportive program includes all day care on non-instructional school days. If you are interested in before/after school care, please contact or call Sandie at 780-514-3400. Also, for more information on the program and fees please go to www.bgcdrayton valley.ca.

This is a short week with the 5 day weekend. Have a good break and be safe if you are travelling.

Our Health Action Team reports a wonderful time of learning at the conference they attended in Red Deer on Oct. 22. Eldorado classes enjoyed two days of Farm Safety presentations on Oct. 29 and Nov. 5. On October 30 we were invaded by all manner of monsters, celebrities, princesses and superheroes, as we celebrated Hallowe'en with a costume parade and classroom celebrations. Remembrance Day will be marked on Nov. 10, at 2:15 p.m. at an assembly in our gym. Parents and siblings are welcome to attend.

SUDOKU

Here's How it Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Hotel room hacks to stay fit while travelling

News Canada

(NC) The allure of takeout, room service and calorie-packed meals are temptations you can't always avoid while travelling. Plus, demanding travel schedules, on top of hand-to-find fitness amenities, can make it difficult to exercise, but don't fret. The travel experts at Quality Inn hotels want to help you maintain your healthy lifestyle and are sharing some simple exercises that you can do from the comfort of your hotel room.

• Weight resistance: Use your body weight instead of barbells. Regular, knee, or wall push-ups, squats, lunges and abdominal exercises will let you get in your strength training.

• Cardio: Marching or jogging in one spot with high knees and dancing are great ways to get your heart rate up. If you want more of a challenge, walk the hallways of each floor and jog the stairs. If your hotel has a fitness centre, go check it out.

• Yoga: Your mental health is also important when on the road. Consider taking a bit of time to find inner peace and relax. All you need is a space on the floor and your computer to follow along with your favourite yoga program online.

• Mix it up: If you get bored easily, incorporate a mixture of all three by incorporating furniture in your room:

- Off-the-bed push-ups will allow you to work your upper body while adding the challenge of a surface.

- Chair squats will help you work your lower body and core.

- Bicycle crunches on the bed will help work your core and offer a softer surface for your back while adding a balance challenge element.

Just a few minutes a day can help lower stress, boost endorphins and encourage a better night's sleep, leaving you relaxed and ready to start the day.

CAUSE FOR CRITTERS PET OF THE WEEK: MISSI

Missi is generally a quiet and affectionate dog who loves to be outside but has spent the majority of her life as an inside dog. She does well with children, cats, and other dogs when introduced properly. Missi knows basic commands and does well off leash. Missi would make a great pet for a family who can provide her with love and attention throughout the years. Find out more about Missi and our other critters available for adoption by contacting the Cause for Critters animal shelter: Bay #3-5450-55 St., www.causeforcritters.ca, or 780-896-7297.
